History

The Glasgow Climbing Centre opened its doors in 1994, and has since amassed over 40,000 members!

The centre has over 40 lines of top roping and leading, an expansive bouldering basement and a dedicated training room.

The building was originally a Presbyterian Church built from wood in 1875. The building you see today replaced the wooden church in 1897. Designed by Bruce and Hay the church was enlarged and built from stone.
